I decided to do my drawing based on a 2 dimensional representation of a Poly crystalline Structure. Solids that have a poly crystalline structure are stronger than mono-crystalline structures because they are able to divert the forces into intersecting grains which aid in resisting deformations such as dislocations.

In my drawing I have drawn the grain boundaries in red and the periodic arrangement of atoms in black along a straight organized manner.